B29s Fire Four More Jap Cities

By Associated Press

A force of more than 600 B-29s, greatest Superfort fleet ever sent out against Japan, rained fire on four more Nip cities early today.

The targets included Hitachi, shelled recently by American and British warships, and an oil refinery.

Striking in the morning darkness, the bombers carried a load of nearly 4000 tons of explosives in the 57th of their incendiary attacks, which have charred 46 Jap mainland cities.

Most of the Marianas-based planes pounced on the Honshu island cities of Choshi, a primary source of fish for Tokyo, Yokohama and other large population centers; Fukui, one of the most important industrial cities on the west side of Honshu; Okazaki, which took the industrial overflow from nearby Nagoya, and Hitachi.

A smaller force hit the Amagasaki branch of the Nippon Oil Co. just north of Osaka. It was the tenth oil target singled out for destruction.

The strike continued the program to burn and blast the core of Japan's war machine and slash at its ability to feed its war workers.

The attack on Choshi, second largest city in the Chiba prefecture and most important fishing harbor on the east coast of Honshu, undoubtedly affected its output of food for the great cities to the south.

One eighth of the entire Japanese fish catch is estimated to enter this harbor for distribution to the Kanto plain district, which has a fourth of Honshu's population.

Situated on a peninsula 60 miles north of Tokyo, Choshi is jammed with industries associated with the fishing fleet—boat building, canneries and net factories.

Fukui has a population of 100,000 and a concentration of war factories, including plants turning

144 Lost As Jap Suicide Planes Ram Ticonderoga

By JOSEPH A. BORS

WASHINGTON, July 19 (INS)—The Navy disclosed today that the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Ticonderoga was damaged by Jap suicide planes off Formosa and that her gallant skipper remained at his post for 12 hours after suffering 65 separate wounds.

The incident occurred Jan. 21, and the skipper was Commodore Dixie Kiefer, of Kansas City, Mo.

American casualties totaled 337, including 144 killed or missing.

Now the Ticonderoga is back in the far Pacific blasting the Japs, following repairs at the Bremerton, Wash., Navy Yard.

Several ship's officers were killed in the two kamikaze attacks as carrier forces blasted Formosa.

"But for 12 hours Comdr Kiefer, injured as he was, directed his ship in the work of recovery and refused medical attention until assured that all injured men had received treatment," the account said.

Still bleeding, Kiefer walked to the sick bay. Now recovered, he has been named commander of the First Naval District air bases and the air station at Quonset Point, R. I.

A relative newcomer to the fast task force, the Ticonderoga, took a heavy toll of the Japs, including the sinking of one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, two destroyers, four destroyer escorts, four large oilers, five freighters, and 14 miscellaneous craft.

The carrier's planes also destroyed or damaged 207 enemy aircraft, probably sank four more destroyers, one destroyer escort, four large oilers, and 20 freighters and damaged 67 other ships.

It was a minute after noon that the first suicide plane crashed through the flight deck and set the Ticonderoga afire.

Planes from the carrier shot down five enemy aircraft and ship's gunners three, but another damaged Jap plane crashed with its bomb load into the island structure, setting new fires.

Two and one-half hours after the first plane struck, the fires were under control without assistance from other vessels. The Ticonderoga still was able to launch and take on planes but she was ordered back to Bremerton.

2 Ways to Whip Japs--Both Good

OKINAWA, July 18 (delayed) (AP)—Japan's air force "got its bellyful of fighting in the Philippines" and now with the homeland invasion threatened Jap airmen "are puzzled to know what to do," Lt. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead said in an interview today.

Whitehead said there are two ways to whip Japan:

Kill enough Japs so they'll quit or kill enough so it doesn't matter whether they quit or not.

13-Hr. Blasts Rock Halifax

HALIFAX, N. S., July 19 (AP)—Canadian navy munitions set off by a jetty fire rocked the Halifax area overnight with four huge explosions and a series of lesser ones which ended only after dawn today. Damaging and crippling blasts persisted for more than 13 hours at the depot in near-by Yarmouth. One was felt in Saint John, N. B., 125 miles away. Fear had been expressed that the main magazine containing 50,000 depth charges, would go up but the explosions dwindled and the flames died down this morning. A dull thud about 8 a. m. appeared to be the last.

There were 13 known casualties, 12 persons were injured and one was missing.

The whole civilian population of Dartmouth, approximately 17,000 persons, and others in the north end of Halifax were evacuated on official orders.

Fireworks dotted the sky. Window glass was shattered. Buildings were rocked on their foundations. A veteran naval officer said the intensity of the explosion was worse than anything he had ever seen in battle.

The first of the major explosions occurred at 5:35 p. m. Others followed at 11:20 p. m., 2:53 a. m. and 3:02 a. m.

The great blaze, sending pillars of fire 150 feet into the air and spraying rockets and brilliant flares over the Bedford basin area threatened momentarily to touch off the main magazine.

Halifax itself was plunged into darkness by a great 3 a. m. blast which cut off all the power in the city. Building lights were restored about 15 minutes later, but street lights remained off.

As the flames swept steadily toward the main magazine, fireboats were rushed to the scene, but were withdrawn when it was determined that the blaze was uncontrollable.

Scenes in the blast area recalled the 1917 disaster in the same harbor when a ship loaded with TNT exploded, killing 1600 persons.

Rankin Demands Stimson Ouster

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Rep. Rankin (D.) of Mississippi told the House today War Secretary Stimson and two of his key aides should be removed from office.

Rankin declared that Stimson, Undersecretary Patterson and Assistant Secretary McCloy "are using their offices to indoctrinate men with communistic philosophy." He added:

"The House Committee on Un-American Activities is getting constant protests from soldiers that these men are responsible for commissioning Communists in the Army.

"I think these three should go now." Several Congressmen took issue with Rankin immediately.

Rep. Sabath (D.) of Illinois asserted "These men have performed a very valuable service to their country."

Rep. Folger (D.) of North Carolina declared Rankin's remarks "are deplorable."

London Hears Winant Soon to Be Replaced

LONDON, July 19 (AP)—Diplomatic quarters heard reports today that John G. Winant might be replaced as U. S. ambassador to London soon after President Truman returns to Washington from Potsdam.

One informant said Winant, former Republican Governor of New Hampshire, might be offered a post as American representative on the Economic Council of the New World Security League. Winant was not in the list of presidential advisors for the Potsdam conference.

British Remove Stalin Billboards

BERLIN, July 19 (AP)—British authorities are removing from the British sector of Berlin all Soviet billboards bearing Premier Stalin's quotations. A British military spokesman said "conservation of lumber" was the reason.

Some billboards also disappeared from the American sector.

The billboards, made of light veneer and painted in red, white and black, bore Stalin's praises of the Red Army, his denial of race hatred toward the Germans and his assrtion that "Hitler has come and gone, but the German people and the German state remain."

Big 3 First Weigh Fate of Germany

By ROBERT G. NIXON

WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S PARTY, Potsdam, July 19 (INS)—The fate of Germany in future generations was made the first order of business by the Big Three today.

The prime consideration of the conference is whether Germany will remain an integrated and unified country capable of self-sustainment and ultimately take its place again in an orderly world.

Germany might regain this status after it has shown it is completely re-educated and freed of Nazi teachings. Or the Big Three might decide upon a plan to split the country in separate principalities such as existed a hundred years ago.

This was the state of Germany before the unification from which permitted the outgrowth of superman theories and led to the Franco-Prussian war and the First and Second World Wars.

This first order of business must be disposed of by President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin before they move on to questions of territorial settlements in Europe.

The matter must be settled before the Big Three can proceed with problems related to the financial and economic rehabilitation of war devastated countries and then cope with means to defeat Japan at the earliest possible moment.

The United States is understood to favor a unified Germany. But this Germany would be a country stripped entirely of power to make war.

The world leaders also must settle the question of for how many years they will continue joint Allied military occupation and supervision of Germany.

This is expected to be settled on the basis of a long-term occupation which will not be ended until Germany proves beyond a doubt that it can be accepted again into the brotherhood of nations in a peaceful world.

The situation where four powers, the U. S., Britain, Russia and France, are occupying Germany in itself presents numerous problems for settlement.

All are agreed that the Allies must eliminate the German general staff entirely. It is also agreed that they must prevent Germany from re-emerging as an industrial, war-making power and must wipe out the Nazi Party completely.

President Truman will give a state dinner tonight to both Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill. The dinner will take place at the Potsdam "White House." It will be attended by five representatives of each government.

Allies Sentence Italian to Death

MILAN, Italy, July 19 (AP)—A three-man Allied military tribunal condemned 20-year-old Fermo Lini to death today and sentenced four other men to prison terms on charges of banding together to kill Fascists or to seize their property.

Lini, accused of being the leader of the group, broke into sobs as Lt. Col. William F. Waugh, former Chicago attorney, pronounced sentence in a tense courtroom in Milan's palace of justice. Lini's sister screamed and collapsed.

Two convicted of aggravated homicide were sentenced to 30 years imprisonment. Two others not implicated in killing Fascists were convicted on a theft charge and sentenced to 10 and six years.

State Guard Quits Geagan Baby Hunt

Despite the pleas of William P. Geagan, the State Guard detachment of 150 men assigned yesterday afternoon to augment the search for his 2-year-old daughter Judy, who vanished from the family's Marshfield cottage Tuesday night, moved out shortly after 11 a. m. today. Col. Francis Savage, in command, said the guardsmen had "exhausted all possibilities."

JUDY GEAGAN
Still Missing After Three Days

The search then turned toward the sea. The Navy blimp still stood by. The Coast Guard stood by. The Marshfield police and State Police went on with the hunt. Volunteers increased. But, all in all, there were not more than 100 persons still searching for Judy Geagan.

The bloodhounds sent by the Rhode Island State Police were withdrawn.

Even as the State Guard was giving up, Rep. Michael F. Skerry of Medford messaged Gov. Tobin a plea for "all available state police and State Guardsmen that can be called" to take a hand in the search. Skerry told the governor he had received "a tremendous number of telephone calls" fro mpersons in his district who had been moved deeply by the plight of the Geagan family.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard dispatched an amphibious "duck" to Marshfield from Chatham. The craft is of the type used in American landings on Japheld islands, so built it can navigate close to shore. It will be used for grappling purposes.

Last night the father had sat in wearily with a board of strategy composed of Col. Savage, Capt. William V. Shimkus of the State Police, Cpl. Edward Blake, a trooper and Chief Clifford Vallier of the Marshfield police. He begged that the search be stepped up and continued. He went to sleep, under a sedative, believing he had assurance.

His wife, also under a physician's care, had the same impression.

State troopers, increasing the scope of their search under orders from Comr. of Public Safety John F. Stokes, were going into vacant cottages and even searching the cottages of persons in summer residence.

It was reasoned Judy might have tired and crawled into a cottage, perhaps to a spot that even residents might not have occasion to investigate.

Shortly before the State Guard pulled out, two Medford milk men appeared and said they wanted to help find Judy. They had been deliverers for the family at the Geagan home, Henley st., Medford.

The long search had revealed up to today nothing more tangible than a few prints of a child's foot near Beetle rock, a quarter-mile along the shore toward Humarock. It was not known whether they were Judy's.

All cottages in the Rexhame Beach section have been searched as were sewers and cesspools in the vicinity of Beetle Rock beach. Officials said the entire area would be thoroughly re-checked.

Tuesday night, when Geagan returned to the beach from his work in Boston, he took the two older girls, Carol Ann and Barbara, out for a walk along the beach. That was just before 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Geagan allowed Judy to put on her jacket and go out on the porch to play. Fifteen minutes later, when Mrs. Geagan went out to look for her, the child had disappeared.

Judy Described

Two years old. Blue eyes, reddish brown curly hair. Wearing tan corduroy jacket trimmed with bright red, red slacks, yellow stockings, white shoes. She is 2 feet, 8 inches tall and weighs 33 pounds.

Girl's Mother Gets Bail For Flier

Offering two North End properties as collateral, Mrs. Stephano Maldera of North Margin st., prospective mother-in-law of Enrico Di Nino, 22, Italian flier charged with impersonating a United States soldier, today obtained the youth's release from East Cambridge jail.

Di Nino had been held one night in lieu of $5000 bail after arraignment before U. S. Commr. William C. Rogers on charges brought against him by the FBI.

The young Italian flier, who was brought up in the North End but went to Italy in 1938 and later joined the Italian army air corps, came to grief when it was discovered he had claimed to be an American sergeant after he was shot down over Athens while escorting British and American bombers.

The family of his childhood sweetheart, Mary Maldera, 19, of North Margin st., whom he was to marry July 29, have rallied to his support despite the seriousness of the FBI charges brought against him in Federal Court here.

Di Nino, who was thrown into a German prison camp after his forced landing over Athens, thereafter posed as an American soldier, according to the FBI, and received $500 in pay checks from Uncle Sam under the name of Henry Michman.

"Is This Drip Necessary?"

Fretting through the fifth consecutive day of drippy fog, droopy humidity and sudden showers, vacationists in Massachusetts today were wondering "is this drip necessary?"

The weatherman had little encouragement for them today as he predicted at least two more days of uncomfortable, sticky conditions.

A stalled high pressure area, about 500 miles north of Bermuda, is blamed for the long spell of disagreeable weather.

William H. Tracy, weather bureau meteorologist, said the best weather was in the midwest where "comfortable, dry, seasonal conditions prevail."

The detective said, Mrs. Monje awakened her mother, Mrs. Anna Muller, 77, and sobbed: "Well, I did it."

The other children are Paul, 16, and Roland, 10.

Man Near Death In Cambridge Mystery Plunge

Edwin A. Brouillard, 27, of Fitzwilliams Depot, N. H., was in a critical condition at Cambridge City Hospital today after falling from a third floor window ledge of an apartment house in Chauncy st., Cambridge.

Herman Seelig, an occupant of a second floor apartment, told police he was awakened early in the morning by noises which prompted him to look out of his window.

He said he saw a man hanging from the window ledge of the apartment above, but before he could summon help, the man fell.

James Nelson, tenant of the apartment over Seelig's, told police he had not been aware of the incident but police said they found a screen on Nelson's window had been removed.

Brouillard's injuries were diagnosed at the hospital as a possible fracture of the spine, a compound fracture of the left leg and acute alcoholism.

Delayed for two days by unfavorable weather, the USS Gen. Richardson, a coast guard-manned Navy transport carrying 5696 returning soldiers, 384 of them from New England, made its way slowly through the haze blanketing Boston Harbor today to dock at Commonwealth Pier.

TRAGIC CHILDREN—Police take a hand in dressing the three Meyers brothers, Jimmy, 6; Ronny, 4, and Jerry, 5, of San Francisco, whom they found dirty-faced and unclothed in their Oakland, Cal., home following neighbor complaints. The children's mother informed police she would "be down in the morning" to answer questions about the lack of care she was giving them.

As debarkation of the troops, veterans of the Second and Fifth Infantry Divisions, started at the pier, welcoming officials were awaiting another weather-delayed transport, the S. S. Frederick Lykes, which was arriving later today.

The Lykes is bringing back 3264 soldiers, of whom 255 are New England residents, with the passenger list made up almost entirely of the 364th Infantry regiment of the 87th Division.

Despite the haze and poor visability, the Gen. Richardson was given the customary greeting by WACs aboard the official welcoming tug and by the whistles and sirens of other vessels in the harbor.

Aboard the transport were several canine pets, which soldiers brought back with them from Europe. Among them was "Irion," an 11 months' old Great Dane, which Lt. Edgar S. Blackledge, of New York, purchased in Leipzig for 300 reichsmarks, which he "found."

Two of the most popular officers aboard were Capt. John G. Burkhalter, a much decorated Baptist chaplain, of Miami, Fla., and Capt. Eugene W. Kiernan, Catholic chaplain, formerly stationed at St. Gabriel's Monastery.

Among her passengers were Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown of Carmel, Cal., commanding general of the Fifth Division, which went into action last July in France and in September was attached to the Third Army, taking part in the smash down the Moselle valley to Metz, and later engaged the enemy in Luxembourg and finished the war with the drive into Czechoslovakia.

The Second Division, which had more than 5000 of its veterans aboard the Richardson, played a vital role in the conquest of Normandy and in the Siegfried line break-through.

Senate Kills Hub Finance Probe By Voice Vote

The order of Speaker Frederick B. Willis for a legislative investigation of the finances and administration of the City of Boston was killed in the Senate today by an overwhelming voice vote.

Prior to the Senate action in ending all consideration of the proposal at the present session, members of the upper branch engaged in heated debate on the question and proposed two amendments to alter the method of the proposed inquiry.

Sen. James A. Peckham of Wellseley offered an amendment which would have the investigation conducted by the Boston Finance Commission instead of a committee of two senators and three representatives as Willis had requested.

Sen. Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham offered another amendment which would provide for appointment of two senators and six representatives to assist the Finance Commission.

Nicholson's amendment was adopted by a voice vote and confirmed by a 15 to 9 rising vote. The Peckham amendment then was adopted by voice vote but was defeated by an 18 to 7 rising vote.

The entire measure then was submitted to the Senate for action and was defeated by an overwhelming voice vote with no call for a rising vote.

GI Loan Fund Debate Delayed

Debate on the proposal to set up a loan fund for veterans in place of a $50 to $300 bonus measure was postponed in the Senate today until the last item of business on the day's calendar.

The Upper House substituted the loan fund plan for the House approved bonus program which called for expenditure of more than $160,000,000. The House provided only $35,028,000 to finance the bonus and left to the Senate the problem of raising the balance.

OPERA OKAYS SWIM SUIT—Patricia Munsel, Metropolitan Opera coloratura, may be photographed in a bathing suit as often as she pleases and the opera officials don't care a hang. When the young singer appeared in the brief suit shown above rumor had it that opera folks would be scandalized. But, as they pointed out, prima donnas often appear on stage in less than Miss Munsel is wearing on the beach.

Sis Frothingham to Wed Again, Quit Singing

Giving her occupation as "housewife," Eleanor "Sis" Frothingham Navarro, Boston socialite, today filed intentions at City Hall to wed Lt. George Cary, Jr., of Buffalo, N. Y., stationed at Boston Port of Embarkation.

Mrs. Navarro said she was no longer a nightclub entertainer or songstress.

"My main job now is taking care of my baby," she said.

Obtaining a waiver of the five-day law from Municipal Judge Daniel J. Gillen, the couple announced they will be married Saturday at 4 p. m. in King's Chapel.

The bride-to-be gave her age as 24, Lt. Cary, associated with New York mining interests before entering the service, listed his age as 34.

Mrs. Navarro's divorce decree from Albert Navarro, noted band leader, became final two days ago. She obtained the divorce in Suffolk Probate Court, Jan. 18, 1945, 18 months after her marriage in New York. She was given custody of their son, Anthony Fabyan Navarro, who was one year old July 6.

This will also be the second marriage for Lt. Cary. He was divorced in 1941 at Palm Beach by Marguerite Isobel Cary. He is the father of a daughter, Allithea.

New Jail Term For Bove, AFL

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—James Bove, secretary-treasurer of Local 60, International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union (AFL), was sentenced to 10 to 20 years imprisonment today on 74 counts of grand larceny and third degree forgery.

During a trial which ended June 27 in Bove's conviction the prosecutor charged he stole $64,575 from the Local.

Bove and Joseph S. Fay, vice-president of the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL), are under eight and one-half to 15 year sentences in New York for extortion and conspiracy to extort $703,000 from contractors on New York's Delaware water supply project.

Ousted Fore River Chief Sues for Job

Howard H. Dacey of President lane, Quincy, 34-year-old father of two children, charged in federal court today he was fired as police chief of the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River plant, in violation of the Selective Service Act, while serving with the Coast Guard.

Dacey, who was a state trooper for eight years, had been chief at the plant for two years and was deputy chief for a year previous, according to his attorney, James H. Brennan.

The civil action asks Dacey's reinstatement and retroactive pay. It sets forth that while serving as chief at the Fore River plant he was given a Coast Guard commission as lieutenant in February, 1943, assigned to active duty and sent overseas.

In July, 1943, Dacey asserts, he was notified by the corporation that he was discharged because of a "clash of personalities."

Dacey was released from active duty in the Coast Guard in October, 1944. In his suit for reinstatement at Fore River he declares he applied for his job again and was turned down.

The case will be assigned for a hearing at the fall term of the federal court.

Tells How Girl Aided Escape

MANCHESTER, Vt., July 19 (AP)—Harold Frotten, 26, former Worcester, Mass., carnival worker, testified today that a daughter of Robert Stratton, whom he is charged with slaying, assisted him in his July 3 escape from Bennington county jail.

Frotten said that Harriet Stratton threw through a jail window a wire and steel brush which he used in forcing jail locks. He said that the young woman planned to meet him in Granville, N. Y.

Police have testified that it was an argument over Frotten's friendship with Harriet that led to the shooting.

Frotten also testified that before he made a 32-page confession, another daughter of Stratton, Mrs. Dora Bahan, had given him three drinks of liquor, passed through a jail window.

Stratton was shot and clubbed to death in his Woodford home.

New Safety Fuel For Aviation

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP)—Practical development of a powerful aviation fuel so safe that "a lighted match can be dropped into it without causing a fire," was announced today jointly by the Standard Oil Company (N. J.) and the Pan American World Airways.

E. V. Murphree, vice president of the central technical organization of Standard Oil, said research chemists had made the fuel "as safe as kerosene but with combustion power equal to the best fast-vaporizing gasolines."

It must be heated to more than 100 degrees Fahrenheit to produce enough vapors to ignite, the announcement said, "thus eliminating the dangers of a flash fire from fast-vaporizing gasoline that might be set off by a spark."

Maritime Unions Ask WLB for Pay Boosts

Street Gasoline Well Mystery

FOND DU LAC, Wis., July 19 (AP)—Fond Du Lac's mysterious gasoline "well," discovered four years ago, has yielded 8000 gallows, City Commissioner W. A. Coffman reported today, but it doesn't work as motor fuel.

Wisconsin Telephone Co. workmen originally discovered gasoline seeping into an underground control unit. Two filling stations were located nearby, but inspectors were unable to trace the seepage. Other investigators were equally baffled.

The City Council ordered a tank placed under the manhole to collect the seepage and the city tried the gasoline in a municipal truck but found that it gummed up the motor. The repair bill was $40.

House Passes Race Gains Bill

Despite arguments over constitutionality, the House advanced to engrossment today a bill providing that some $200,000 in unclaimed money on winning horse and dog racing tickets be turned over to the State.

The House also passed an amendment providing the money be set aside as a special fund for assistance or rehabilitation of World War II veterans.

Rep. Eben W. Ramsdell of Winchester argued that the measure in its present form was unconstitutional, and vainly sought passage of an amendment which would take all future unclaimed money and allow holders of uncashed tickets one year in which to collect.

OPA's Drive for Cheaper Cotton Clothes Ups Prices

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The government's efforts to increase the supply of inexpensive clothing hit the consumer in the pocketbook today.

A program to boost output of moderately priced cotton garments has expanded so that retailers are going to have to charge more for them.

When retailers' mark-ups were fixed last February, 15 per cent of civilian cotton fabric supply was earmarked for the inexpensive garment program. Now 80 per cent is so tagged.

Merchants contended their 32 per cent mark-up put the "squeeze" on them as government fabric controls reduced supplies of more profitable expensive garments.

So OPA agreed that beginning Aug. 17 retailers may add a 34 per cent mark-up for some cotton garments and 36 per cent for others.

As a result, women's seersucker dresses that retail now for $5.10 will cost $5.40 as compared with a range of $5.98 to $6.50 before the current mark-up. Men's broadcloth shorts retailed at 69 cents last year will sell for 60 cents, 5 cents more than at present.

The adjustments apply to all cotton garments to which manufacturers are required to affix retail ceiling tags. These include such items as men's shirts and pajamas; women's and girls' slips, blouses and night gowns; boys' pants, wash suits and blouses, and children's sun suits.

It takes a corps of 58 restless, prowling, keen-as-a-whistle globe trotting buyers to bring these wonders of the merchandising and retailing world to Filene's Basement from all points of the compass!

Petain Faces Double Charge

PARIS, July 19 (INS)—Marshal Petain, chief of state of the Vichy French regime, will face a double charge of plotting against the state and of collaborating with the enemy at the opening of his treason trial Monday.

Charges are under three separate headings—material, moral and political.

The material charges accuse Petain of having signed the armistice and of suppressing the presidency.

The moral indictments charge Petain with "abhorring the republic" by allegedly voicing hope for the return of a monarchy.

The political accusations are that he "resigned himself to defeat and accepted defeat" by pursuing a policy of collaboration.

Concord Crash Kills Army Flier

An Army pilot was instantly killed today when his P-38 fighter plane crashed and burned on the golf course at Concord Country Club in an apparent attempt at an emergency landing.

Identity of the victim was withheld by military authorities pending notification of next of kin.

Fire fighters from Bedford Army Air Base and the Concord fire department were unable to get close enough to the burning wreckage to pull the pilot's body from the flames.

Witnesses said they saw the plane circling over West Concord playground with smoke pouring from the engine. Officials believed the pilot decided against landing on the playground because of the many children there.

U. S. Air Lines Pool Urged for Foreign Trade

Proposal for formation of an international community company to operate all American air transportation in foreign territory to offset intense competition from foreign lines was made today by J. Carroll Cone, assistant vice president of Pan-American Airways.

Speaking at a luncheon of the Aeronautic Ass'n of Boston at the Parker House, Cone pointed out that communications and shipping companies had tried previously to operate in competition internationally and found the practice unsound.

"Our shipping lines have long suffered from the fact that numerous American lines could not compete successfully against each other as well as against low cost foreign lines," he said. "Before the war we generated 80 per cent of all foreign traffic but our ships carried only 25 per cent of it."

He pointed out that such a community organization would not interfere with domestic air operations but would engage only in foreign business and enable the nation's airlines to present a united front to intense and subsidized foreign competition.

He suggested that all transportation companies, land, sea and air, should join in the community organization and participate financially and be represented on its board. He said the actual organization could be under government direction but the company should remain privately owned and operated.

He warned that failure to take such action might result in weakening of the various competing lines and a consequent reduction in the amount of business the American lines could do in the foreign field.

Bottle's Odyssey Eire to Denver

DENVER, July 19 (AP)—Another of Ray Shackley's old bottles has gone halfway around the world and found its way back to his cellar.

Shackley dropped his last one into the Atlantic ocean Sept. 7, 1941, while piloting an excursion steamer up the east coast. Inside he put his picture, name and address.

Yesterday the bottle arrived at Shackley's house with a letter from a Patrick Barrett of County Mayo, Eire, who found it June 11 on a beach.

Now a Denver fireman, Shackley still has the urge that possessed him in his seagoing days. Occasionally he throws a bottle into the South Platte river. One of those came back recently from Boston.

Cussing Out Jap GI Jails Coast Woman

SACRAMENTO, July 19 (AP)—A tirade against a Japanese-American soldier and his family has landed Mrs. Wilma Insigne, 34, of Walnut Grove, Cal., in the Sacramento county jail because, in the words of Justice Milo Dye, "Doing you a favor is doing you an injustice."

Dye sentenced Mrs. Insigne to 90 days in jail on charges of disturbing the peace and using vulgar, profane and indecent language. He suspended 60 days of her term on condition she leave the country after serving 30 days.

Secretary of Interior Ickes yesterday cited her conviction as the first jail sentence imposed for threatening returned Japanese-Americans.

Dye told Mrs. Insigne, "You tried to incite certain people to an act of violence, and had you gained enough followers you might have started a riot resulting in bloodshed or death."

She was arrested on complaint of Army Pvt. Yoshio Matsuoka, back in the United States after 10 months in a German prison camp. Matsuoka charged the woman threatened to have his father's home burned down if the family remained in Walnut Grove.

From her cell Mrs. Insigne screamed: "It's a lie, a dirty Jap-loving lie! I positively did not threatend any Japs. I just gave them a darn good cussing out."

She said "at least a dozen" Japanese went past her home and "I've always said if ever a Jap returned to Walnut Grove I was going to give them a good cussingf, so that's what I did."

Mrs. Insigne is the wife of a Walnut Grove Filipino.

Toll Operators' Strike Set Aug. 2

New England's long-distance telephone system will be rendered ineffective if more than 200 toll operators adhere to the strike vote they have recorded to enforce pay increases. The strike is scheduled to start Aug. 2 unless the War Labor Board sanctions their pay demands.

The pay increases were demanded, according to the operators, because of dissatisfaction over the WLB's handling of a $4 weekly pay boost, the girls claiming that the board had had the request before it since April and had taken no action.

Phoney War Forced On France--Gamelin

By GEN. MAURICE-GUSTAVE GAMELIN

Copyright, 1945, by the Associated Press

PARIS, July 19—Many people wonder why the French and British armies remained inactive during the first months in that period known as "the phoney war." My answer is an old French military axiom:

"You never have a good reason for a blunder."

Consider the situation that had been created for us at the end of September, 1939.

If Belgium had been allied with us, if she had let us pass through her territory while the Germans were tied up in Poland, we could have turned the Siegfried Line which stopped at that time in front of Luxembourg and only extended in a thin row of pillboxes into the plains of Aix La Chapelle (Aachen).

But France and England couldn't enter Belgium and Luxembourg forcibly. We were therefore committed to attack between the Rhine and Moselle, taking the bull by the horns.

In the night of Sept. 6, we began moving forward, and after Sept. 9 took the offensive to do our best to relieve Poland.

Between the Sarre and the Vosges, we approached the Siegfried Line. We perpared to attack Saarbruecken.

But it was rapidly becoming obvious that Poland would soon be prostrate. Therefore, the bulk of German forces committed against her would rapidly be directed against us.

We couldn't dream of continuing a frontal attack on the Siegfried Line, especially because the Germans, on whom scruples never weigh heavily, could invade Belgium and outflank the main mass of our armies.

Could we, moreover, pass the winter in the open field facing an enemy situated in the Siegfried Line, subject to his action, his artillery and air power?

There was only one logical solution: to withdraw behind our frontier and to profit from the Maginot Line, hubsanding our strength in order to meet the eventual German maneuver through Belgium.

Had we the right to go into a partially important attack? But for what results? That wouldn't have improved our situation in any respect. Quite the contrary.

Should we in this way renew the mistakes of 1915 for which we had been bitterly reproached and which had been so expensive in men, without achieving any appreciable advantages? Hadn't our experience condemned such piecemeal attacks?

Actually, the real war hadn't begun. We were in a new form of political tension but with general military and industrial mobilization.

What was necessary was to profit from it by preparing for the storm coming in the spring. I still repeat this. The government told it to Parliament in secret meetings.

But the nation never understood it as it should have. The artisans of the defensive let it be understood that the war could be continued without any battles. It was perfect for enemy propaganda in all formes and for the work of defeatists and Fascists.

The truth is that we had to await the war effort of our British allies, and the events as they developed proved that we had to await also the effort of all the great democracies.

Q—When a naval man is awarded the Purple Heart medal does the gov't have the serviceman's name and other data engraved on the back? Also, does a certificate go with the award? When I asked for the certificate, the CO told me it would be on my service record. R. J. G., Dorchester.

A—No engraving on medal, and CO's answer was correct. Discharge will also read of award given.

Q—I received notice from the War Dept. last January that my son was missing in action. Three months later I received a letter returned and stamped "hospitalized." Just a few days ago another letter was returned and stamped "Returned to the U. S." Please tell me where I might get information on these letters and also his status. H. P., Boston.

A—Suggest you write immediately to the Adjutant General, War Dept., Casualty Branch, Wash., D. C., giving soldier's serial number, organization and data pertaining to letters returned. I cannot answer the reason for various stampings on letter. Seems as though they are confused as to exact status.

A—Allotments cease following discharge.

Q—Would a boy who is being discharged from the Army because of dependency forfeit his mustering-out pay and also benefits of the GI Bill? J. R., Somerville.

A—He is entitled to mustering-out pay and also benefits under GI Bill, just the same as one being discharged under point system or for medical reasons.

Q—When my son was five years old, he was legally adopted by my mother. Three years ago he enlisted in the Air Corps and became a pilot. Recently he was killed and it was revealed that his foster mother (grandmother) was named beneficiary of his insurance. If my mother dies, who will receive unpaid balance on insurance? I have another sister and he has a smaller brother and sister. D. S., Stoneham.

A—The ruling on this case as given by the Veterans' Bureau was to the effect brother and sister could receive unpaid balance in event of death. There would be a legal question on your part as the child's real mother, as to your receiving any payments. As your question is only hypothetical, there is no need of my discussing it further.

Q—My son has been in the service since war started. He has now a total of 70 points. When he reaches the required amount, will he be given discharge? T. P., Arlington.

A—The War Dept. has indicated the minimum number required for discharge will be lowered. Also has indicated that points acquired since May 12 may be added to their credit.

Get Ready for Fair

CHAIRMEN of the many features to be found at St. John's Church Fair on Thursday of next week are announced by Mrs. Nathaniel S. Simpkins, Jr., who, as general chairman, seems to have done her usual efficient job of staging an event that will draw patrons from miles around to Beverly Farms.

Food, which holds such special interest for everyone these days, is still high on the list of attractions at the fair. Despite rationing problems, the committee assures fair-goers that the customary high quality will be maintained. Miss Alice Thorndike and Mrs. Thomas McKenzie will supervise an attractive hot lunch which will be served by a corps of pretty waitresses in South American costumes, to carry out the Pan-American theme of this year's fair.

Mrs. A. Sweet, Jr.

Mrs. Fitzwilliam Sargent, assisted by Mrs. Howland Seabury, has planned a delectable tea, to be served in individual tea sets with delicious sandwiches and cake. Patrons can also buy cake and candy to take home, at the table where Mrs. Bayard Warren and her co-chairman, Mrs. Richard Sears, should do a rushing business. Soft drinks and hamburgers will provide another popular gathering spot of the fair. The Young People's Fellowship will direct activities here, with Miss Ruth Anne Bennett as chairman.

RUMMAGE at St. John's always brings numbers of patrons who are on hand when the gates open. This year the fair has been divided into three departments—bric-a-brac, with Miss Caroline Pousland as chairman; clothing, with Mrs. Alfred Sweet, Jr., assisted by Mrs. John A. Eaton, and the "extra good" rummage, old silver, etc., on the bibelot table, with Mrs. George Cushing presiding.

Under the flags of all the Americas will glow the colorful flower and vegetable stalls, which are brought to St. John's from the many estates on the shore. Mrs. Russell Burrage is chairman of the vegetable table, and Mrs. Sherman Morse and Mrs. Paul Bertelsen are co-chairmen for the flowers.

Helping with the grabs, toys, and pony rides will be Mrs. Theodore Rehm, Mrs. Harold Wise, Mrs. Gibbs W. Sherrill, Mrs. Walter Miller, Mrs. William Hammond and Mr. James M. White, Jr.

Captain Anderson's Circus will give performances in the outdoor theater. A Punch and Judy show will be held in the Parish Hall, while moving pictures of Pan-America go on continuously throughout the day.

Set Late Plants Now, but Don't Disturb Roots

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head of the Vegetable Garden Department, Norfolk County Agricultural School, and Director of the Boston Record-American-Advertiser Garden on Boston Common.

Although victory gardens in Boston have increased in number by 15 per cent this year, this does not necessarily mean a corresponding increase in production. Production can be increased only by continuous planting and constant care of crops already planted.

Weeds are still a problem—just because they were cleaned out last week does not mean that they will not come back. The cloudy weather is in their favor, especially purslane which is a late summer weed and should be carried out of the row to save work later.

Now is the time to set late cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower and celery plants, and it must be kept in mind that they must be set without disturbing the root system too much. So far the soil has been moist and even beginners were able to get away with their mistakes without realizing it.

Set plant roots in straight and be sure to firm the soil around each plant. Soaking the soil once around each plant after they are set will help.

The question has come up as to the use of manure at this time of the year. It can be used for late crops provided it is spaded or plowed in and also in some cases as a surface top dressing between rows such as fall squash. I have seen some excellent crops grown where it was applied and worked into the surface. Do not apply too heavy an application of poultry manure, however, or you will encourage vine growth and delay maturing of fruit.

Many have complained that they are not getting results from use of rotenone dust on beans for the control of the beetle. One thing to keep in mind is that it kills slowly. Results may not be noticeable for several days. Do not use old dust and keep dust in a dark place as light causes it to lose its value.

Your help wanted!

New York's "critical" hotel room shortage isn't a myth. Right now it's mighty serious. And it's going to get worse.

Already the boys are coming back from Europe—many on brief leave before heading out into the Pacific to finish the job out there. Hundreds of thousands of them will be returning each month from now on.

New York is glad to see them . . . proud to have them . . . wants them to enjoy themselves while they're here. They've earned it! They've been fighting for us and deserve the best during their short visit home.

So we appeal to you again—please don't come to New York unless it's absolutely necessary! And before coming, please write for reservations at least one week in advance. Specify date and hour of arrival and duration of your stay—we'll let you know at once whether or not we can accommodate you.

Also—please cancel reservations promptly when plans change—check out early on departure day.

Okazaki, old and highly inflammable, is known to contain many "shadow factories" of backyard industries. It turns out war implements such as aircraft parts, ordnance, electrical equipment and light metal parts. The city's population is 84,000.

Earlier bombarding American warships had carried the air-sea attack on the Tokyo area into its third consecutive day, shelling outer approaches to the Japanese capital within sight of the imperial palace. Cruisers and destroyers turned their guns loose in a midnight attack on Nojima point, 28 miles from Yokosuka naval base where nine hours previously hundreds of carrier planes swarmed down on fighting but trapped Japanese warships.

These blows at both flanks of the entrance to Tokyo bay were the most daring sorties made by Adm. Halsey's powerful Third Fleet. For 10 days it has been roaming up and down the main island of Japan in what Tokyo described as "reconnaissance in force" to test Japanese air power, and to pick out a likely landing point for an invasion which may come sooner than expected.

Tokyo radio admitted that air and sea bombardments have shaken Japanese morale, and unofficial spokesmen debated whether the Allied fleet was readying for quick invasion or merely making "spasmodic" attacks unworthy of being met.

One analyst saw in the fleet action merely an "insane" effort to pep up the American home front.

More realistic commentators said the Japanese felt so insecure they were hoarding their money.

Meanwhile, on other fronts Japanese and puppet Indo-Chinese troops who launched attacks against three points inside China have been driven back across the Indo-China border, and other Chinese forces continued a multi-pronged drive on the former U. S. 14th Air Base city of Kweilin. In all, 32 buildings were damaged.

FARMERSVILLE, Tex., July 19 (INS)—I was called back to my regiment, discharged from the Army—a civilian for three whole hours—then commissioned a second lieutenant.

Oct. 26 we were advancing toward St. Die. My radio operator had been killed and I was directing my platoon by hand as we went up a hill. A sniper spotted me, and his bullet hit me in the right hip. I fell and rolled into a ditch.

I ordered my platoon to go on under command of a sergeant. Finally Capt. G. Harris, commander of the company, who later was killed, took me back to an aid station.

The bullet had torn away a lot of hip muscle. As the shock wore off, the pain became intense and I blacked out. When I came to in an evacuation hospital, I was told infection had developed and it had been necessary to cut away a lot of my hip. Then I was removed to a general hospital, and given penicilin 18 days.

The penicilin apparently fixed up my hip, but I sure hated those injections.

I still walk with a slight limp from that wound, but Army physicians have told me it will clear up eventually. The injury added an Oak Leaf Cluster to my Purple Heart.

If you wonder how much good the Army Nurse Corps is doing, your worries are over. They worked harder than anyone else over there—on the job all hours of the day and night and always eager to keep the patients comfortable and happy.

I still write to two nurses in Europe who were so good to me while I was wounded.

Army Flying Camera Gets First Night Color Pictures

CHICAGO, July 19 (AP)—A big Army bomber, converted into a flying camera and creating artificial daylight, flew over Chicago's Tribune tower and nearby Fort Sheridan last night to take what was reported as the first known night color pictures from a plane.

The mission by the B-24 Liberator bomber, nicknamed by airmen "Lightning Bug," represented the Army's first official experiment in night color photography from the air with the use of the famous Edgerton lights.

The bomber used a K-19 camera, with a 12-inch focal length located in the nose. Affixed at the tail were two tubelike lights in the center of two 36-inch reflectors. The lights, developed by Dr. Harold Edgerton of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, are 1,000,000 times as strong as the ordinary photographic flashlight bulb, and have a flash duration of 3-100 of a second. The flashes can be spaced automatically at 15-second intervals, thus allowing a continuous photographic strip.

WANTON CRUELTY

THERE WAS a recent "spoting" event in Owyhee County in Southern Idaho which, if press association reports concerning it are accurate, compels comparison with the gladiatorial combats in the arenas of ancient Rome for the sheer wantonness of the cruelty displayed.

A news story carried by International News Service and originating in Nampa, Idaho, thus described the event:

"Six horses were DEAD OF EXHAUSTION today after a gruelling eighty-five-mile cow pony race over sun-beaten stretches of Southwestern Idaho, intended to advertise the Snake River rodeo at Nampa."

Eleven contestants were in this KILLING race, including one 15-year-old rider.

It continued for TWO DAYS "through a broiling canyon and an open stretch of Owyhee County."

"Contestants reported that SOME of the horses died on the way to R Ranch in Owyhee County. HALFWAY point of the race," said the story, "and OTHERS died of exhaustion on the second day lap."

SUCH AN EXHIBITION, inhumanely conducted, in the name of "sports," is degrading and disgusting.

Conducted in the guise of ADVERTISING, it transgresses all rules of morality and decency, and advertises nothing else than that certain parts of civilized America are still in the control of semi-savages.

The creatures destroyed by DEATH FROM EXHAUSTION were not pests, or animals of no use to mankind and with no claim upon the appreciation and affection of men.

They were the most essential and loyal and prized of all animals, in a land where even before there was any OTHER law there was an immutable law against the stealing of or practice of abuse upon horses—which were the indispensable associates and companions of frontiersmen and painsmen.

FOR MORE than thirty years there has been an annual observance in the civilized parts of the United States of "Be Kind to Animals Week," having as its purpose the discouragement of brutality to living creatures of our American fields and forests.

For nearly eighty years there has been a great national organization in the United States, called the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, serving the same purpose, and the additional purpose of encouraging kindness and humane treatment of all dumb creatures—especially those which render invaluable services to mankind.

But apparently the meaning of these fine purposes is still lost in the minds of many people, and in many parts of our country.

ROADS TO PORT

THE $156,000,000 which the Massachusetts House of Representatives has approved for a six-year postwar highway construction program should be spent prudently rather than politically.

We need wide throughfares to link all the Commonwealth's major cities and towns with the Port of Boston.

Nothing worthwhile will be accomplished by squandering millions on roads that lead to cow pastures and wood lots.

They may attract a few votes for a half-dozen Senators and Representatives, but it should be obvious to everyone that they will not attract the kind of industries our working population needs.

Broad highways leading to the port will enable mill and factory managements to enjoy the full benefits of low-cost water transportation.

Thus they will be able to meet the increasingly powerful competition from other parts of the country and provide new jobs and higher wages for millions of persons, including the returning servicemen.

The Port of Boston is the Commonwealth's biggest asset.

Road planners cannot afford to make the tragic mistake of isolating it.

"I HOPE (to see) a cordial fraternization among all the American nations and . . . their coalescing in an American system of policy totally independent of and unconnected with that of Europe. The day is not distant when we may formally require a meridian of partition through the ocean which separates the two hemispheres, on the hither side of which no European gun shall ever be heard, nor an American on the other . . . I hope no American patriot will ever lose sight of the essential policy of interdicting in the seas and territories of both Americas the ferocious and sanguinary contests of Europe.

" . . . Our first and fundamental maxim should be never to entangle ourselves in the broils of Europe. Our second, never to suffer Europe to intermeddle with cis-Atlantic affairs."

—THOMAS JEFFERSON.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Have you paid off the stogies for losing that argument as to who originated Mother's day? A—I was about to when furnished with additional evidence which convinces me that Anna Jarvis, a native of Grafton, W. Va., was, as I claimed, the originator of Mother's Day. Q—Have you a reader in Webster, where Lake Chargoggagoggmonchauggagoggchaubungagungamaug is located? A—Yes, indeed. I have been there, too. Suppose you know the name of this lake in the Algonquin Indian language means "You fish on your side; we fish on our side; nobody fish in the middle." Think there is a lake in Scotland that has a longer name but I wouldn't wager a stogie on it. Q—Why is it the English Epsom Derby is at a mile and a half and the Kentucky Derby, allegedly patterned after it, is at a mile and a quarter? A—The Kentucky Derby is usually run too early in the spring for three-year-olds to go a mile and a half.

HANDSOME OFFER: Despite the continued claim that the man shortage is acute, this department has received many communications from feminine subscribers denying such a condition exists. I have even received a letter from a woman who wants to give a husband away. He is considered quite good-looking, is six feet tall and weighs 200 pounds. He bowls, dances, golfs and plays poker. He does all these things enthusiastically as well as drinking like a fish, but not the same stuff. At present we are separated. He is with his mother. However, he is still my husband and the honey blonde is welcome to him if she can get him away from his mother. I don't think she will have any trouble. He will follow a brown-eyed honey blonde. He always has."*

Kindest regards from Dad, Mother, Jimmy (11), "Babe" (9) and myself. All are your regular readers."*

NEW YORK, July 19—The facts thus far known do not make a complete picture of Elliott Roosevelt's alleged loans and defaults.

Westbrook Pegler

The stories of John Hartford, president of the A. and P. grocery chain, and Jesse Jones, former Secretary of Commerce and erstwhile chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, seem to agree that Hartford loaned Elliott $200,000 and that Jones settled the debt for $4000.

The loan of $70,000 from David G. Baird, New York insurance man and banker, and the $50,000 loan by Maxwell M. Bilofsky, New Jersey manufacturer, appear to have been similar deals, although not identical in detail.

I HAVE REASON to suggest that Hartford's check for the $200,000 was drawn against his account in an out-of-town bank and that the $4000 settlement was made by a cashier's check which, on its face, would conceal the identity of the one who put up the money.

It is my understanding that, although Elliott's dad was a millionaire and apparently wanted the loans washed up, no member of the Roosevelt family put up the $4000.

These and other loans were made in 1939 when Elliott was going strong in his radio promotions and were settled by Jones early in 1942.

MEANWHILE, in October, 1940, a special dispatch from Fort Worth, Tex., Elliott's home and his base of operations at the time, reported that he gave up an annual income of $76,000 to serve in the Army at $316 a month, and this seems to have been true.

The piece quoted G. T. Stanley, treasurer of Elliott's Texas state network, as saying that Elliott, the president and principal stockholder, received a salary of $24,000 which was pretty good going, considering the condition of the company, and $1000 a week for doing a commercial broadcast.

A St. Louis New Deal paper had to take a nibble at the developing story of Elliott's operations the other day and reported that Gerald P. Stanley, who might be the same fellow, the son of a rich cigar manufacturer, invested $20,000 in Elliott's network and became a vice-president and general manager.

It added that a Gerald P. Stanley was now working in the men's wear department of a Chicago store and that he refused to talk.

JOHN KANTOR, of New York, who claims to have worked for Elliott, contributes a statement that Elliott got $500 or $600 a week from a big New York radio manufacturer for doing a commercial and that after 13 weeks he was renewed for another 13 weeks at about twice the original price.

Mr. Hartford says Kantor called on him when Elliott's affairs appeared to be deteriorating, as the dividends would put it, wanting to buy Elliott's $200,000 notes.

I can't say whether Elliott and Sirovich got wind of this visit, but anyway one night in late 1939 Sirovich and another fellow, whose name I am saving for dessert, called John into the Roosevelt Hotel here and, in return for $200, in fist, and a promise of some more money, got him to sign a document releasing Elliott, Sirovich, Hall Roosevelt, who was Elliott's uncle, and Texas State network from all debts and claims.

A lawyer who is in a position to know some of the details, writes me that Elliott conveyed 1850 shares of network stock to his former wife, a Fort Worth girl, in their divorce settlement and another fellow, a party to some phases of the play, hit me over the head with one of those broad-axe hints that the stock which Elliott put up as collateral for the Hartford loan was delivered back to Elliott when Hartford got his $4000 and was used by Elliott in the divorce settlement.

I HAVE JUST come on an interesting, casual bit in a little trade paper devoted to the thoroughbred horse business. It says Elliott is stabling nine Arabians at a thoroughbred farm in Los Angeles called the Circle S and that this farm belongs to George W. Stratton, executive assistant to Donald Douglas of Douglas Aircraft.

Usually it costs at least $6 a day per head to stable and train high class stock. In this case that comes to $378 a week and, of course, we know that a general of the American Air Force would hardly accept free stabling from an executive of a company manufacturing planes for the Air Force.

And the horses themselves probably represent quite a passel of money, so, after all his vicissitudes, the kid seems to be doing okay on his brigadier's pay.

ALL AROUND TOWN: With so many chorines and models acquiring trick names for benefit of picture captions, the startled management of La-Conga has discovered the exception to the rule. She's a chorine who was christened Murnal Pins, and no amount of persuasion will make her change her first name to "Bobby" . . . The shortage of life guards on our public beaches can be blamed not only on the armed forces but on the new Aquadium water ballet in Flushing Meadows. Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 19—The Thrush (with apologies to W. Winchell) Rise Stevens, has herself a new movie contract and what a contract. She has put her name on a deal to star for Leo McCarey and you know without my telling you, nearly any actor or actress in Hollywood would give a year's salary just to make a picture for Leo.

Rise Stevens

They tell me on the RKO lot that "The Bells of St. Mary's" is so good it's history-making. Rise's first for Leo is "Strike a Note," a romantic musical comedy destined to bring out her voice and her glamor. She makes the picture at the Roach studio whenever the Army leaves that studio. Rise, remember, was Bing Crosby's leading lady in McCarey's "Going My Way."

★ ★ ★

ONE THING'S CERTAIN. Bill Marshall, who has just signed a deal with Republic, will have the support of 60 stenographers on the lot. Bill was chosen by the girls after a poll was taken to see whether they wanted him or some other leading man. The way it was done was like this. They showed "Belle of the Yukon," in which he appeared, and some tests of "State Fair," which he recently finished at 20th. After they were shown the girls were asked, "is he star material for Republic—or isn't he?" It may interest Mr. Bill to know that he got the unanimous vote of all 60 girls.

MERVYN LE ROY has a strangle hold on the radio show "Queen for a Day" for a screen musical—and he isn't going to let go unless someone comes up with a mighty fancy offer. This is the show that was started and is operated by Bud Ernst, and we on the West Coast are just getting it, since it originally played only eastern stations. This is the idea: Judges pick one of six beautiful girl candidates to become a "Queen for a Day" and she can go anywhere and do anything she wants for 24 hours.

CAN'T IGNORE Mayor Joe E. Jenkins of Amarillo, Tex., and Gene Howe, publisher of the Amarillo Globe-News. Both gentlemen have written in behalf of one of their young townsmen, who is struggling to get a foothold in Hollywood. His name is Denny Plumlee and Mr. Howe says: 'He has the will and the spirit and he's going to make good in Hollywood or wither on the vine of life." Well, I wouldn't want him to wither, and Mr. Howe and Mayor Jenkins seem to think I can keep him from it. It seems that Plumlee is out here for "Boy's Ranch," being made by M-G-M and sponsored by Amarillo citizens. If this little word of mine can convince Louis B. Mayer that he'll make Amarillo happy if he'll give Denny a chance, I am glad to speak right out—although one word from me and the studios do as they please.

I RUN INTO Dennis O'Keefe about every Sunday now that he is the "Hollywood Mystery" part of my Sunday news broadcast. It's a good way to keep up in Dennis' movie doings and he tells me his next is "Hail, the Chief" at Columbia. "Yes, it's named after the train by the same name," he cracked. The girl in his movie life will be Marguerite Chapman—a belle who is certainly doing all right for herself these days. She just finished "Pardon My Past," with Fred MacMurray.

SNAPSHORTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Unlucky Janis Paige sprained her ankle today. She's just back on her feet after a serious illness; Nan Gray tells me that she and Jockey Westrope went to Las Vegas on a vacation and the rumors started. Said Nan: "We've been married six years and thank Heaven we are very, very happy." Norman Gerry's friends will be sorry to hear that he is sick in Sawtelle Military Hospital; Mayor Frank Hague, here for his annual vacation, was the dinner guest of the Brynie Foys at the Charley Foy nitery; Walter Winchell has gone back to New York. His young son, Walter, Jr., is having a birthday; Harry Cohn said today that as soon as he and the other producers are free to talk he'd have many interesting things to tell about his trip. "I wouldn't take five million dollars for my experiences," he said, "nor would I take ten million to do it again."

WASHINGTON, July 19—The Army and Navy do not see eye to eye on sleeping-car accommodations for troops on the move. The Army assigns three men to each Pullman section—two in the lower berth, one in the upper. The Navy provides a separate berth for each man.

Mrs. Truman

This means that an average Pullman car carries 12 fewer sailors than soldiers—which means a lot fewer men when you consider the number being transported across the continent, daily.

Report is that the Office of Defense Transportation intends to issue a flat order to the Navy to get in line with the Army.

★ ★ ★

IT SEEMS to me that ODT also should do something about the allotment of drawing rooms and compartments to civilians. Many of these flossy rooms have three berths, but—only too often—a single traveler grabs the entire space. Drawing rooms and compartments shouldn't be sold to solitary train riders.

★ ★ ★

FOR ALMOST as long as she has been in Washington, Mrs. Truman has been buying her hats from a certain local department store. Furthermore, she has always dealt with the same saleswoman.

Impossible as it may seem, this saleslady has never tumbled to the identity of the first lady. Apparently, all she has ever gathered is that the customer is a Mrs. H. S. Truman.

The other day the first lady walked in, unescorted, and selected a black hat with a veil. The veil was found to need alteration. Mrs. Truman said she would like to have the hat to wear to — early that evening, whereupon the saleslady called the workshop. Mrs. Truman distinctly overheard her say:

"There's a customer here who wants a hat altered today. We can't do it, can we?"

Naturally, the workshop agreed. Mrs. Truman put up no protest but meekly accepted the verdict. About to depart, she said:

"By the way, in charge accounts you always wish to be notified of a change of address, don't you? Well, I have changed my address."

The saleslady asked the new address. Without change of expression, Mrs. Truman replied: "1600 Pennsylvania ave."

The address failed absolutely to register. The saleswoman asked Mrs. Truman to wait while she notified the credit department. After a while, she came back and said:

"The credit department says it is perfectly okay!"

ONE OF the hardest working men in the Senate is Pat McCarran of Nevada. He works early and late, accomplishing an unbelievable amount of work for a man 69 years old.

Nevada's Senator is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and also serves on Appropriations, Commerce, District of Columbia, Irrigation and Reclamation, Public Lands and Surveys, Conservation of Wildlife Resources, Silver, and the Special Committee investigating the Effect of the Centralization of Heavy Industry.

Several newspaper stories mentioned him as probable successor to Owen J. Roberts for the Supreme Court. But when a couple of reporters went to Mr. McCarran to check, the indefatigable Nevadan exclaimed:

"No Supreme Court for me! That job is a mankiller!"

★ ★ ★

SPEAKER SAM RAYBURN ordered vanilla custard in the House restaurant the other day. The custard proved pretty insipid and Sam ordered a scoop of ice cream to go with it. He was turned down flat by the waiter, who told him only one dessert to a customer.

I just mention this to show that Congressmen don't enjoy so many extra privileges as many people seem to think.

MR. JAY CARMODY, president of the exclusive organization, Alcoholics Acknowledged—this is his own designation, not mine—has become fascinated by a piece in one of local society columns. Every time he reads the thing he goes into hysterics. Just in case you may be afflicted with a sense of humor similar to Mr. Carmody's, here's the item:

"In Washington, delightful gardens crop up in the most unexpected places. There is, for instance, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon's walled garden only a short block from the downtown State Department.

"Mrs. Bacon is one of the capital's most distinguished political hostesses and her parties are political 'salons' in the best sense. Her every interest is centered on winning the war, keeping the peace and guarding the harmony of the United Nations."

Adds Mr. Carmody, the lowlife:

"Can't you just hear Mrs. Bacon saying, as she arises from her distinguished bed each morning:

"'Today I must win the war, keep the peace, and guard the harmony of the United Nations!'"

Furlough Love In Keith's Film

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

Love on a furlough, a theme which threatens to become very familiar before long, is the basis for "Those Endearing young Charms," which opened at the Keith Memorial yesterday.

Jerome Chodorov's script sticks to the surefire formula of boy meets girl—boy loses girl—boy gets girl, but it has the advantage of dialogue which sounds right, and of some good characterizations.

Robert Young portrays a blase young pilot, a soomthie with the ladies and a bit of a cad, and does it very convincingly. He uses his wiles on the very nice girl friend of his former buddy

One of the best things about this picture is that Ann Harding, still lovely, plays the mother of Laraine Day, the heroine of the piece. The latter gives a monotonous performance, with just two facial expressions in her repertoire.

Bill Williams, a newcomer to the screen, gets his first opportunity as the home-town boy who loves Laraine but loses her to Robert Young. He is a very engaging youth, but has been given a role which won't establish him as a romantic actor, to say the least.

CELEBRATED Hollywood beauties, Adele Jergens and Ann Rutherford, are currently decorating local screens. This fair Adele is importantly featured in "A Thousand and One Nights," holding over a second week on Loew's twin screens. The Tremont's hold-over picture, "Bedside Manner," boosts the brunette Ann.

Calf—eteria

FORSYTH, Mo., July 19 (AP)—Because his calf had an appetite for billfolds, R. F. Soutee, a farmer, has asked his ration board for gasoline "A" and "B" book replacements.

Soutee lost his billfold and later found the calf making a meal of it. He killed the calf and reclaimed the wallet—with all its contents, including money and ration books.

Aation officials were able to identify the "A" and "B" coupons.

Returning GIs Always Happy to Get Ice Cream

By MARTHA LEE

DID YOU KNOW that ice cream headed the list of foods most missed by GI's away from the good old U. S. A.? It might be a good thing to remember if you are expecting somebody home on furlough

Fashion

BROADENED, sloping shoulders and mandarin neckline go smartly together in this black crepe surplice dress with peplum flange softening the slim lines of the skirt . . . a new note for the coming dress season. The sequinned, simulated lizard belt . . . buckled to one side . . . is typical of many waistline eye-catchers in Joseph Halpert's fall 1945 collection . . . which won raves from the fashion press at the New York showings this week.—R.M.

Ice cream never becomes monotonous, but it is fun to ring in a few flavor changes, especially since ice cream lends itself to so many subtle ones. For example, here are two recipes—the first, an easy one which shows how to embellish ice cream for a dessert de luxe; the second, a new way to make ice cream without sugar.

PEANUT BRITTLE ICE CREAM

Chop about ¼ pound of peanut brittle or several peanut candy bars—putting through a meat chopper is a good way—and mix the chopped candy into a quart of soft vanilla ice cream. Then put back into the ice tray and refreeze. The result is a light brown cream tasting like caramel and having the extra deliciousness of the crunchy bits scattered throughout it.

PEANUT BUTTER ICE CREAM

2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk
½ cup water
1½ tsp. vanilla
¼ cup peanut butter
1 cup light cream

Mix condensed milk, water, vanilla and peanut butter. Chill. Meanwhile, place cream in top part of a 1 or 2-quart double boiler. Fill bottom with ice cubes, and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons of salt. Place top in bottom and beat cream until it is stiff. Then stir into milk mixture. Place in freezing tray of automatic refrigerator with control at coldest setting. Freeze until half frozen. Then transfer to a bowl and beat until smooth, but not melted. Replace in refrigerator tray and freeze until firm. Makes 3 servings.

And how about home-made chocolate ice cream? The words are guaranteed summer spell binders, for to grownups and children alike chocolate ice cream is a treat that rates high.

Ordinarily, it would be a rare luxury in most homes this summer because of the scarcity of sugar. But smart homemakers today always seem to find a way of getting over difficulties—and now we hear of a chocolate ice cream that uses no cream and only ¼ cup of sugar. This ice cream is made with one of the popular powdered chocolate drink mixes that is especially rich in chocolate and sugar. And here is the simple, easily made recipe:

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM

⅔ cup chocolate food drink
1½ tbsp. flour
¼ cup sugar
1½ cups milk
1 cup evaporated milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Combine chocolate food drink, flour and sugar in saucepan. Stir in milk slowly until smooth. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Cool, then chill thoroughly. Pour evaporated milk into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and chill until ice crystals form around edges; then whip, add vanilla and fold into chilled chocolate mixture. Pour into freezing tray, and with cold control set for fast freezing, freeze until firm, stirring once or twice in tray. Makes 1 quart

Many other delicious dessert recipes calling for chocolate and sugar can be made with this chocolate food drink, which is famous as a vitamin-mineral drink that children love when mixed with milk. The reverse side of the label on the bottle gives several recipes, such as chocolate cake, custard, frosting, dessert sauce, etc.

Since ice cream always needs an accompaniment, why not make this delicious cake which is also prepared with the vitamin-mineral chocolate mix mentioned above:

CHOCOLATE CAKE

½ cup chocolate food drink
1½ cup sugar
½ cup boiling water
½ tsp. salt
2-3 cup buttermilk
2 eggs
½ cup shortening
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. baking soda
2 cups all-purpose flour

Mix ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup chocolate food drink and ½ cup boiling water together. Stir constantly over low heat until chocolate and sugar are thoroughly dissolved and mixture boils up. Cool. Cream ½ cup shortening and 1 cup sugar together. Add 2 beaten eggs and beat mixture well. Then add the chocolate mixture and 1 tsp. vanilla. Mix until smooth. Sift 2 cups flour with ½ tsp. salt and 1 tsp. baking soda. Add alternately to creamed mixture with 2-3 cup buttermilk. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake 25 to 30 minutes in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) Turn out and cool.

Introductions

Ease in making introductions comes only with practice. First you must learn the basic forms . . . there are not many, and they are simple and easy to learn . . . then try out your skill in every opportunity that comes your way. And a lot of home-work practice is an enormous aid!—MRS. BEECKMAN.

Pin-Up Styles

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Fashion Editor

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP)—Every woman should be a pin-up girl, in the opinion of Designer Nettie Rosenstein, who accents the bosom throughout her collection of suave, sophisticated fall fashions.

Drapery and soft fullness above a sculptured midriff are signatures of the Rosenstein line, which also recognizes hips in a new swkirt fullness.

Her slick, discreet "little black dresses" and sensational evening gowns dramatize feminine curves in every seam.

AMONG the tricks she uses to focus attention on the bosom are:

The Aileron tuck, sunburst folds, valance drapery, cones of stiff fabric standing out in the front of crepe dresses, and a new pinafore drape, like a bib of fabric reaching from waist to chin and tying at the back of the neck.

She likes high, wrapped necklines, except in extreme exception, when the entire chest and shoulders are left bare, framed in a deep folf of fabric.

The drawstring skirt is the highlight of Clare Potter's collection, shown in both daytime and evening versions, in materials ranging from cotton velveteen to hand-painted sik shantung. Mrs. Potter shows "sissy pants" of black velveteen for informal dinners at home, pairing them with deruffled Gibson girl blouses.

ADELE SIMPSON present "Kodachrome" dresses and suits in vivid color combinations, and accents "spotlight sleeves" slashed from shoulder to wrist.

Her "outcurve" shoulder is a nice compromise between the new round-shouldered look and the flattering square shoulders of the last few years.

Fathers Draft Unchanged Here

"Very few" fathers are being drafted in Massachusetts now but there is no policy against their induction, declared Col. Ralph M. Smith, state selective service director, today.

z Smith, commenting on an order halting draft of fathers in New York city, said that was a "purely local situation and not a national policy."

He said the order for induction remains unchanged: volunteers, 18-year-olds, single men under 30, and finally fathers in lower age brackets.

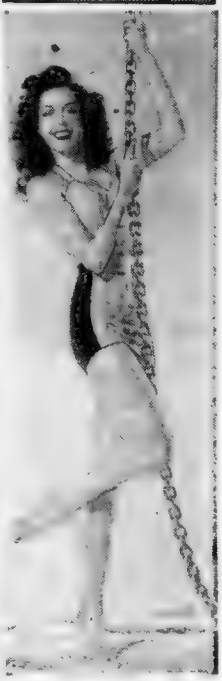
Grand for Vacations

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

GETTING READY for that well-deserved, much-needed vacation? Anticipating the joys of digging your toes in the hot sands and lazy-daisy it for a fortnight . . . with nary a care about the office and its responsibilities and duties? It's a wonderful feeling . . . so make the most of it . . . look and feel as wonderfully fresh as a breeze.

Beauty



BEACH SIREN . . . thats' the yearning of every girl. She wants to be the cynosure of all eyes in the maximum of minima beach togs . . . She craves a second glance when she twirls on the dance floor under the stars . . . she wants attention . . . and one sure way to get it is to create an aura about you as cool and enticing as a dancing moonbeam . . . a new body mist scent that's enchanting, we mean. Columbia Star Ann Miller poses.

Toss care and worry to the four winds . . . and by the by, there's a new body mist that's dedicated to that four winds feeling of nonchalant and burdenless happiness . . . as appealing as the summer exposure fashions and a complement to the new vogue.

A noted dress designer . . . famous for her creative artistry in clothes . . . and for her exposing adaptations of warm-weather apparel needs . . . and equally famous for the distinctive scents which bear her name as harmonizing fragrances to blend with her fashions . . . is responsible for this brand new one.

Because she felt that smart-looking girls wanted to go whole-hog in the new bareness decreed this summer . . . subject, of course, to some semblance of convention . . . she created this four-winds-feeling scent that produces an aura about you as cool and enticing as the maximum of minima styles for which it was intended.

LIGHT, AIRY SCENT

Because it has such a light, airy scent . . . it can be used liberally no matter how humid the weather. Splash it all over yourself after your bath . . . use it whenever you need a lift or relief from the heat . . . let it surround you like a soft sea spray . . . whether you're in abbreviated swim suit on the beach . . . or in abbreviated dressup clothes on the veranda.

Slightly sweet . . . and just a bit pungent . . . it has that indefinable something that makes a gal more attractive. It is as cool as the dew on the grass . . . light as a breeze in the willow . . . enchanting as a dancing moonbeam . . . this is the essence of this new body mist. Romantic words we have written about this new body mist . . . but the're words that find substance in the reflected delight of this luscious liquid.

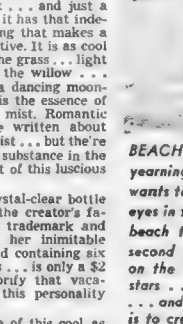
A classical crystal-clear bottle . . . capped in the creator's famous signature trademark and decorated with her inimitable prestige . . . and containing six generous ounces . . . is only a $2 investment. Glorify that vacation trip with this personality glorifier.

For the name of this cool as a breeze body mist, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Guard Against Moths

By BETTINA BEDWELL

A LOT of us will be taking vacations in the next five weeks, and I want to speak about some of the vacation hazards that will beset our clothes.



First of all there are the dangers to the clothes you left behind you. If you are going away, you ought to see that your clothes are properly hung in your closet or put away with moth balls so you won't come back to find some of your best things in ruin.

It is necessary to leave your clothes clean, as a first precaution. Then hang them correctly on hangers if you leave them in your closet, and something laid over the shoulders will keep out dust if they are not in bags. And remember, rayon isn't always immune to moths, either, for much rayon material contains other fibers which moths will eat even though they don't like the rayon.

It takes a little time to arrange your closet but it is time well spent and will eliminate future headaches.

In Defense of the U.S. Sport Writing Profession

By AUSTEN LAKE

A MARINE MAJOR WHO SIGNS HIMSELF "ex-newspaper" writes me a sass-letter for "looking down my adenoids" at Schools of Journalism in a recent column. He labels me a "converted, but not cured" sport writer. He says I still employ the "bombast of the sport page" and am smutted with the "syntax of press box." Then he tips his garrison-cap to the reason for his gripe by adding, "I myself am a graduate of Columbia's School of Journalism." Nine rahs and a mother goose jingle!

Austen Lake

Well I've found that some of the best and some of the worst in journalistic prose is printed on the U. S. sport pages. The worst is that fantastic jumble of jargon which terms a home-run "a four-master," a ball bat a "banana stalk" and a pennant a "gonfalon" and myriad of other cliches. But the best is written by such fountains of persiflage as Dan Parker of the New York Mirror, John Kieran lately of the Times, and Bill Corum of the Journal American, to mention a few.

There's a good reason for this! The U. S. sport pages allow more elasticity of expression, deal with more pictorial people and appeal to the most voracious appetite for fun of any nation in the world. A London sport author would get a term of years or a stiff court plaster for writing some of the things the U. S. sport writer does about private individuals in the U. S. A. In London you don't refer to a man's "muffin nose" or his "rubber-plant ears" without being served with a summons. Nor do you mention "nauseous odors" surrounding some prize ring enterprise or dub a business boxer a "floperoo" without getting sued by same for defamation. Wasn't it old Tommy Farr who sued Trevor Wignal, the London News fight dilettante, for £12,000 for slurring him as a "punched out martyr of his own mistakes?" American authors blistered Farr with impunity!

Keiran's Culture; Parker's Acid

LET'S EXAMINE THE ROLL! John Kieran, who has earned a reputation for erudition on the "Information Please" hour, is a sort of journalistic Gold-coaster with a quiet whimsy, no malice and a magnificent long-distance memory. His mental treasure-trove embraces such subjects as ornithology, astronomy, mythology and pie baking. Recently when his Master of Ceremonies asked "How many men were on base when Mighty Casey struck out?" Kieran without faltering recited: "And when the dust had lifted and men saw what occurred, there was Jimmy safe at second and Flynn a-huggin' third."

Corum is a jovial little man like a rubicund Santa Claus who gathers his lore by sitting on the stoop of some night club, listening to a congress of mugs, aristocrats, loogans, millionaires and eggs. He has a ready ear for the American language and a wider acquaintance with both ornery and upright people than ex-Postmaster Farley. He is constantly earing-up on information every time he comes out of his pent house and drapes his rotund carcass in one of his music comedy getups, receiving and heeding, among other things, some very bum steers on the horses. In fact, one could make a very luscious living booking his bets on the giddyaps, year in and out, so often and so very wrong is he.

Dan Parker is a shy-amiable giant and the greatest master of vituperation since the late W. O. McGeehan. His knack for satire hits like the flick of a wet towel. Like Keiran he writes verse. But where Keiran's is winged and inclined to beauty, Parker's is low down, realistic and lifts the scalp.

Cursed be he who incurs Dan's wrath, for he shall be laid among the lilies. For Dan is a marathon hater with a knack for carving human flesh into comic curlicues. His pet hates are Larry McPhail of the New York Yankees, the New York Boxing Commission, Promoter Jimmy Johnston, and anybody, any time who incurs his spleen.

The Country Is Full of Good Ones!

STILL THIS BARELY SCRATCHES the skin of the better sport writers. There is Bob Considine, also of the Mirror by way of Washington, who writes best-selling books on the side—a tall, languid, Hamlet type with a love for alliteration. And Bob Salsinger of the Detroit News, whose pungent wisdom is breakfast diet for some 300,000 souls, not to mention a smattering of heels. And Stanley Woodward of the Herald-Tribune, a part time war correspondent and myopic philosopher who writes like Jove nodding on Mt. Olympus. And why not mention Elisha W. Cunningham, who does verbal embroidery which smacks of filigree lace on long, red underwear. And Roy Stockton of the St. Louis Post Dispatch who pens ponderosities with a zephyr touch which makes him one of the eminents on the income tax. And John Carmichael of Chicago News and Frank Graham of the N. Y. Sun and Dave Egan of the Boston Record.

To begin with, until the post-World War I period, called the era of Wonderful Nonsense, the envied pioneers of the sport writing profession were McGeehan, Grantland Rice, Damon Runyon and Ring Lardner. The last named had been lost in the great mob of mediocrity until he launched his "You Know Me Al" series and gradually became a great short story writer and humorist until he died in bed with his typewriter propped on his knees. His last words were supposed to have been "I am trying to think of something that will make them laugh."

Then came Heywood Broun, Quentin Reynolds, Paul Gallico, Westbrook Pegler who have since graduated into forms of belles lettres and bank accounts. The thing that puffed sport into a national prominence was the so-called golden age of the big fight, the home run, Paavo Nurmi, Bill Tilden, Bobby Jones, Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey and Man O'War, who created an opportunity for sport writers to make from $10,000 to $150,000 a year. But the vast bulk remained in the $50 to $75 a week class, where they still are. It is the best newspaper school for writing in the world, beside which schools of journalism are only a McGuffy's 4th Reader. So if I am, as the Marine major states, a "converted, but not cured sport writer," I am content to accept the compliment and remain just that.

Red Sox Lineup Shifted

By HUCK FINNEGAN

FENWAY PARK, July 19—The Red Sox left-handed batters looked so weak against southpaw Frank Papish in the first game of the Red Sox-White Sox series, that Joe Cronin threw his right-handed brigade against southpaw Thornton Lee in the second game of the series today.

In the outfield, in place of Metkovich and Lazor, were Leon Culberson and Tom McBride. Bob Johnson, who bats right-handed, remained in left field.

Emmett O'Neill (6-3), who beat Detroit, 3-1, in his last start despite issuing 10 passes, was on the mound for the Sox today. The veteran Lee, who opposed him, was seeking his 10th victory.

FIRST INNING

WHITE SOX—Moses singled. O'Neill threw out Schalk. Farrell singled, scoring Moses and took second on the throw in. Dickshot hit to O'Neill and Farrell was run down, O'Neill to Lake to Tobin. Lake threw out Cuccinello. ONE RUN.

RED SOX—Lee threw out Lake. Tobin was hit by a pitched baly. Culberson singled. Johnson walked. McBride hit to Schalk, who tried to get Johnson coming to second and then decided to throw to first to try to get McBride, but the throw was too late and all hands were safe, Tobin scoring and the bases remained filled. Newsome hit into a double play, Lee to Schalk to Farrell. ONE RUN.

Lake's Potent Bat Puts Him Among Leaders

It's been a long, uphill pull for Eddie Lake, but the scrappy little Red Sox shortstop has made the grade at last. Made it so resonantly, in fact, that he has become a serious threat for the American League batting crown.

Lake's name isn't found among the league leaders. That's because he hasn't been to bat 200 times as yet. But his name will be high among the leading hitters tonight because he had been to bat 197 times before O'Neill dueled southpaw Lee in today's Red Sox-White Sox game.

Lake has been whaling the ball ever since he relieved Newsome at short on May 27. He made six home runs in June and now has eight to his credit. Since last Friday he has made 13 hits in 25 trips for a better than .500 average and has climbed into the .320's, bunched with Case and Cuccinello.

Eddie Lake

Moreover, his fielding has been spectacular. He's been key man on most of the Sox 100 double plays. His great stop and throw on Moses in the fifth inning of the midweek game helped smooth Ferriss' path to his 16th victory. His arm is the strongest in the league, yes, better than Michaels'.

Everybody's rooting for him to continue his streak. He sat on the Cards' bench while Marty Marion made the all-star teams. "I want to play regularly," he told Southworth. "Send me to Sacramento." He went and was so sensational the Sox grabbed him. He subbed for two years while Detroit tried desperately to get him. He did no complaining. Just tried his hand at pitching with fair success and took all the practice he could get.

Wouldn't it be a story if a '43 and '44 relief pitcher and utility infielder, and a leadoff man to boot, stole league batting honors from established stars like Case, Johnson, Stephens and Co.?

Cooper and Javery Tangle With Reds

By BILL GRIMES

CINCINNATI, July 19—The Braves and the Reds are not going to get to see much of each other on this trip. Like the Arabs, the Braves after playing a double-header today, one of those twilight-night affairs, will fold their tents and trek for Pittsburgh tomorrow noon.

Mort Cooper and Al Javery will do the pitching here. Cooper will hurl the twilight game. Then he will board a train and return to St. Louis, per order of Dr. Robert Hyland. Cooper's arm kicked up after the two innings he pitched against the Cardinals last Sunday. Last week he took daily X-ray treatments. Now, Dr. Hyland wants to examine Cooper's arm as soon as possible after he has pitched. So, back to St. Louis goes Big Mort tonight. He will rejoin the club in Pittsburgh, if Dr. Hyland is satisfied that his elbow is on the mend.

Within an hour after General Manager John J. Quinn was advised from Boston that the War Labor Board had issued a permit for the Boston National League Baseball Club to install lights at Braves Field, the players knew it.

It is interesting to note the reaction of the Braves to every deal and an innovation made by Pres. Lou Perini. They were more or less skeptical at the start of the season. But, they began to swing the other way when their boss beat at least five other National League clubs to Mort Cooper. Then, they were all for the acquisition of Joe Medwick and Bill Lee. They are convinced that the "Front Office" is doing everything within its power to corral a winning ball club and attract crowds to Braves Field.

"Say, are we going to play night baseball at home this season?" they asked.

"Do you know that if we played under the lights at home," asked one player, "it would help the club. If you check back, you will discover that we haven't hit in any first night game we've played in the west this season. I hope they install lights right away."

Well, there isn't the slightest chance that there will be night baseball at Braves Field this season, or night football this fall. It's a large job installing lights for night baseball. According to no less authority than Jess Glaesse, who is the chief engineer of the Perini Construction Company, it's at least a two months undertaking.

There will be probably eight steel uprights, three on the grand stand and five around the remainder of the field. There'll be at least 144 individual lights of 3000 watts in each group. And because of the enormous area, which must be lighted as bright as day, the steel stanchions to which the lighting units will be attached will reach between 80 and 100 feet above the ground.

It is a very expensive undertaking to install lights in any ball park. Braves Field will prove to be one of the most expensive, for the owners of the club will insist on buying the best of equipment, regardless of cost.

New British Champion Is To Seek Bout With Louis

By JACK CONWAY

IN THE POSTWAR PERIOD, you will see Bruce Woodcock, who won the British heavyweight boxing championship by knocking out Jack London in six rounds, invading the United States in quest of a match with Joe Louis. Woodcock, who weighs only 182 pounds, did not experience too much trouble handling the 215-pound London.

On first thought, one would say that a heavyweight champion, even of merry England, should scale more than 182 pounds. A glance at fistic history, however, shows that Jack Dempsey only weighed 183 pounds when he crushed the gigantic Jess Willard, while Jack Sharkey was 188 pounds when he defeated big Harry Wills.

Bill Carey

I like to see a heavyweight contender weighing around 190 pounds. The early successes of Dempsey and Sharkey, however, proved that one can scale under 190 pounds and still do all right.

I shall be interested in reading what Norman Hurst, famous English sports columnist, says about Woodcock. Norman covered the Sharkey-Scott bout at Miami, and before that came to the United States with Jack Elliot and other English boxers. Hurst is an able judge of boxers, and he will not mince words in giving his ideas about Woodcock.

I hope Woodcock proves a better fighter than Joe Beckett, Phil Scott, Jack London and other heavyweights who held the British title. The average run of British heavyweights in recent years have had horizontal tendencies when under bitter ring fire.

I knew Phil Scott better than I did other English heavyweights. Scott was known as "Fainting" Phil in view of his tendency to hit the canvas once he had been belted around by a sturdy fighter. He built up quite a reputation for himself for hollering "foul."

Scott with all of his fistic faults was a good boxer. He could outbox the average run of heavyweights, but when he was under fire with an opponent who could punch the British champion did not do so well.

Sharkey Kayoed Scott

SHARKEY kayoed Scott at Miami, Fla., with the British champion insisting that the Boston heavyweight had fouled him. Sharkey used the Scott victory as the stepping stone to his first bout with Max Schmeling.

Schmeling was under suspension in New York for failure to go through with a Scott bout. Max returned to Germany, and Sharkey agreed to meet Scott so as to eliminate the British champion. Sharkey entered the ring a 20 to 1 favorite.

When Scott made an early claim of foul, Referee Lou Magnolia gave him a five minute rest. When boxing was resumed, Sharkey hit Scott at will. "Fainting" Phil claimed foul even when Sharkey hit him on the chest. Scott was finally counted out.

The bout was staged in February, 1930, when boxing was enjoying one of its most colorful periods. Bill Carey had taken over Tex Rickard's duties as head of Madison Square Garden. Carey was so much impressed by the success of the Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami Beach the previous year that he decided to make the Sharkey-Scott tussle one that would long be remembered.

There was not an ODT in those days, and Carey ran a special train from New York to Miami. The train was loaded with sports writers, boxing characters and folks who knew somebody who knew somebody. Carey picked up the check.

Carey hired the Dade Hotel at Miami Beach for his guests. There was 24 hour bar service, while the dining room seldom closed. The number of added starters to the guest list increased so rapidly that Bill later leased the DeSota Hotel at Miami Beach to take care of the overflow.

The expense tab for the show was $60,000. Carey, now sanitation commissioner of the City of New York and a member of the board of directors of Curtis Wright, told me that the personal enjoyment he got out of the trip was worth at least $100,000.

Farr Worried Louis

TOMMY FARR was the best of the British heavyweights to come to the United State. He gave Joe Louis plenty of trouble over the 15-round route.

Max Schmeling made a special trip from Germany to New York to see the bout as it was planned to pit him against the "Brown Bomber" a few months later. As we waited for the decision in the press row, I whispered to Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, that he would not get an immediate Louis bout. I knew that Farr's showing against Farr that his management would wish to get him more experience before taking on the German in a second bout.

After Louis was given the decision, the champion hurried to his dressing room, and announced he had injured one of his hands. This news was a disappointment to Joe Jacobs and to Schmeling.

It was not until the following year that Louis met Schmeling, and when he did he won by a knockout inside of two minutes. Louis by that time had become one of the greatest champions of all time, while Schmeling, past 30 years of age, was on the downgrade as a fighting machine.

Louis is today going back which will give Bruce Woodcock, Tami Mauriello, Billy Conn, Jimmy Bivins and other contenders the thought they can level the "Brown Bomber." The passing years and ring rust lick more champions than do the punches of rivals.

Consider Barging Horses to Florida

MIAMI, Fla., July 19 (AP)—Can shipment of horses by barge provide Florida with its winter racing season? This question was discussed seriously in the resorts today.

Speaking to a civic club in Tallahassee yesterday, Gov. Millard Caldwell said the state may have its racing season even though the ODT transportation ban is still in effect.

A Jacksonville ship company meanwhile announced it would ask ODT consent to use idle barges and tugs to bring horses here from northern points.
